

in all of this, in all Nixon's statements and all those made for him, there is a special and specially-limited meaning to The Watergate. He and his never spell it out because to do this would be to give his/their game away. He and they speaking for him restrict everything they say to the actual break-in at Democratic headquarters and never include - never intend to include - all that accompaniment of crimes all of which will never be known that to everyone else in the world is encompassed by the rubric The Watergate.
